Introduction

CaféOlé! is an existing work cafe located in Chamberí, Madrid. It is an environment that provides features such as wifi, private workspaces, networking events, and affordable snacks and drinks for customers. Customers can either reserve a space online at the cafe or walk in. For five euros per hour, customers can work at the cafe and get unlimited coffee and snacks for as long as they pay. If they want to purchase a day pass, it is 25 euros, which includes CaféOlé!'s perks for the entire day.

Scope-objective:

Provide a safe and reliable workspace for students, especially those studying abroad or on an Erasmus. Allow study abroad students to connect in a more professional and academic environment.

Improvement:

Currently, CaféOlé! is geared towards professionals seeking a reliable work environment. We propose to make CaféOlé! a more suitable place for students, especially those studying abroad or on an Erasmus program. This improvement will include special deals for students, like discounts on hourly work rates and monthly memberships. These discounts could be advertised at schools, and students could use their student cards at the cafe. Additionally, we propose to add events designated to connecting students to each other and other opportunities in Madrid. This will allow them to feel more at home in a new city, and it will allow them to connect with other students who are passionate about their academic and professional goals. It could also motivate students to do their schoolwork because they will be surrounded by other motivated peers. A competitive advantage of this improvement is a work cafe with students as their main focus. There are several work cafes in Madrid, but few, if any, of them cater to students, especially study abroad students. With this, a competitive advantage is customer loyalty. When students find community at a place like this, they are likely to come back. This increases both profit and reputation of the business. Partnering with local universities like Complutense could increase the number of students who regularly go to CaféOlé!.

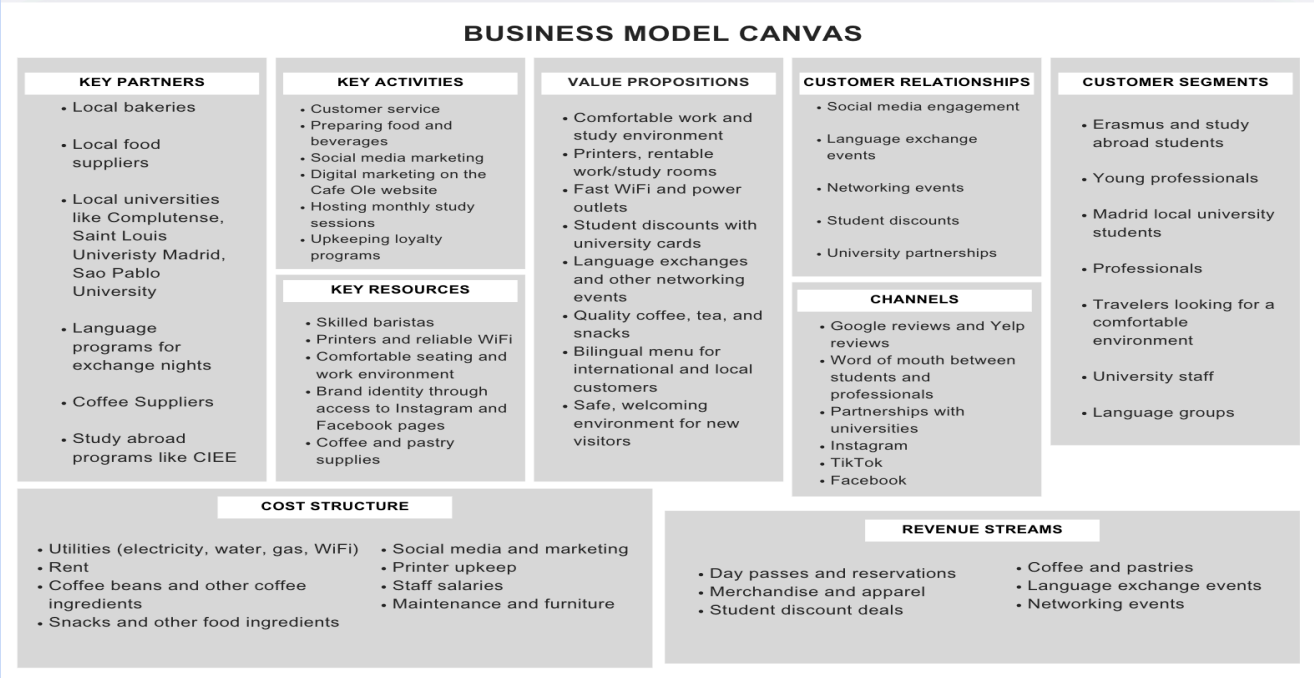
Business Model Canvas



PESTLE Analysis

Political Factors: Following Spain's small business regulations, such as Sociedad Limitada, a limited liability company. City of Madrid policies and regulations for small businesses, such as CaféOlé!. In Madrid, cafes must have health and hygiene certifications and a business operating license. The cafe must comply with Spain's strict labor laws, like minimum wage requirements and working hour regulations.

Economic Factors: CaféOlé! must consider student budgets, as they typically have limited amounts of money. Many students are also unemployed, which would make the student discount helpful. They must also factor in the high cost of living in Madrid, which could decrease the number of customers. However, tourism in Madrid is high, which could increase profits. Tourism could bring travelers who need to work remotely.

Social Factors: Demand for reliable WiFi and work-friendly cafes in Madrid increases the popularity of places like CaféOlé!. Many students are looking for good places to study near their university. CaféOlé! is located close to the "University City" part of Madrid, which could increase customer numbers. Professionals in need of a change in environment from their work are driven to go to work cafes, increasing CaféOlé!'s demand. It is prevalent among many people that cafes should have healthy food and drinks, which could influence demand.

Technological Factors: Online reviews through Yelp or Google could influence a customer on their decision to visit the cafe. Social media activity is another factor because an aesthetic Instagram or a popular TikTok about the cafe could sway a customer into visiting. Fast WiFi and reliable internet are key to retaining customers. Printers and contactless payment systems such as Apple Pay are also useful technological factors for the business.

Legal Factors: CaféOlé! must adhere to national health regulations through the Agency for Food Safety and Nutrition (AESAN). HACCP (Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Points) is required for businesses to follow for food safety. They must also follow minimum wage requirements, which means that they must pay employees at least 1,134 euros a month if full-time (40 hours) and 620 euros a month for part-time (20 hours).

Environmental Factors: Brand image can be improved if they use sustainable packaging and practices. Younger generations generally pay attention to recycling and sustainable practices, which would help with the cafe's new focus on student customers. Additionally, CaféOlé! could reduce environmental impact and long-term costs by investing in cleaner energy appliances.

SWOT Analysis

Strengths: CaféOlé!'s ability to bring a reliable environment for a wide range of professional and student audiences. Quality coffee and pastries, all included in the hourly usage fee. Central location in Chamberi, close to corporate areas and universities. Fast Wifi and printers, variables that aren't found in all coffee shops in Madrid. Community aspects like networking and language exchanges.

Weaknesses: Menu not available on the website, making it difficult for potential customers to determine their visit. Prices can get expensive for longer periods of time, and customers may not feel like they are getting their money's worth if they aren't utilizing the unlimited food and drink offer as much as they can. Dependence on in-store sales instead of delivery options.

Opportunities: Increased access to study abroad and Erasmus networks through partnerships with universities. Tourism in Madrid is experiencing increasing popularity, and the Chamberí neighborhood is experiencing gentrification. Sustainable packaging and vegan options could increase customer interest. Collaborations with local and beloved bakeries to increase popularity.
Threats: Other coworking spaces in different locations. Changes in consumer preferences in the coffee shop aesthetic or location. Fluctuations in tourism through different seasons. Fluctuating costs of resources like coffee beans, milk, and pastries from local bakeries.

Economic and Social Analysis

In 2025, Madrid had over 11 million tourists, meaning that tourism is a reliable source of customers for CaféOlé!. Considering the number of tourists, many people want a reliable space where they can catch up on work, which is why CaféOlé! is beneficial. Additionally, there is an increasing social trend of cafe culture, which is ideal for the cafe. Spain is facing inflation, as many countries are. This could increase the cost of food and cafe supplies, which could lead to price increases. Fortunately, Spain's unemployment rate was 9 percent in 2025, the lowest it has been since 2008. This allows for more customers, especially those who need a space to work.

Competitive Analysis

As discussed, CaféOlé! caters itself as a "clubworking" and "professional/coworking" coffee destination with premium membership prices up to 300 euros/month with inclusion such as wifi, workstations, available coffee, printers, scanners, storage services, private rooms, and meeting rooms. However, 300 euros a month can be a steep price for students, as many do not work, isolating this cafe as a "professional" one. Moreover, CaféOlé! faces stiff competition due to Madrid's competitive cafe scene and already-established cafes that are laptop and study-friendly, such as La Bicicleta in Malasaña and the Federal Cafe in Chamberí. For example, La Bicicleta offers moderate pricing for food and specialty coffees, laptop-friendly tables, access to wifi, and an urban space that makes this cafe highly competitive and extremely appealing to not only professionals, but the student population as well.

However, the majority of cafes in Madrid that cater to students and professionals looking to work with peers on technology tend to have limited space, limited free wifi, and individuals can be turned away or told to put their laptops away during peak hours of the day, especially during the weekends. These regulations and protocols can make it challenging for students and professionals looking for an affordable space to work and collaborate with one another at any time during the day, into the late afternoon. Where these cafes fall short, CaféOlé! can step in to bridge that gap. CaféOlé! Has existing infrastructure such as high-speed internet, dedicated quiet zones, and communal seating. With further additions that help cater more toward a student population, CaféOlé! has the potential to become the next best cafe that both students and professionals can thrive in.
